AMUSEMENTS

Theater-Salt Lake music lovers took a deep draught from an inspiring fount last night. It has been a long time since we were given an opportunity to listen to so unique and delightful an entertainment as that furnished in the visit of the distinguished composer Madame Lehman, and the English quartet she had selected to interpret her compositions. It was equally pleasing to notice, too, that the importance of the event met with a hearty response from a grand audience, which included the greater part of the critical and professional life of the community.

Mme, Lehman herself had the reception she deserved as one of the foremost female composers of the times. Her part was ilmited to accompanying the singers, but it was a pleasure to note the enjoyment she seemed to take in their rendition of her songs; apparently her delight was as keen as that of any one in the audience. She selected as the interpreters of her music, a charming group of artists. While they may not belong to the rank of the Melbas, Carusos, or Schuman-Heinks, they are of the high grade of efficiency that may be found doing the classical church choir work in the cathedral cities of England, artists whose musical training has been of the highest, and who in those two rare respects, enunciation and pronunciation might serve as models for the world. It would be difficult, indeed, to imagine a finer instance of tone blending, with perfect sympathy of interpretution, than this quartet affords. Miss Tomlin, soprano; Miss Turner, contralto; Mr. Eisdell, tenor, and Mr. Henry, baritone, (who might be called bass with equal justice), did some rare work together and some equally beautiful achievements as soloits. The exquisite balancing of their voices was most notable in the tender finish of the "Persian Garden" number "Alas, That Spring Should Vanish With the Rose," when the voices were heard unaccompanied.

The program was divided into three parts: First, "in a Persian Garden," took a deep draught from an inspiring fount last night. It has been a long when the voices were heard unaccompanied.

The program was divided into three parts: First, "In a Persian Garden," Mme. Lehman's setting to words selected from the great Persian poet. Omar Khayam, every musical passage of which shows the composer's genius; second, miscellaneous ballads, and third, the Nonsense Songs from "Alice of Wonderland." This gave a wide variety to the program. The humorous numbers gave us some delightful touches, even though they were occasionally more British than American in their suggestions, and the Nonsense ballads were especially enjoyable. Miss Tomlin, the soprano, has a ringing, clear voice, and her fetching manner accentuated the impression she scored. After her song of "Everybody's Secret," she had a big recall, when she rendered the popular "Cuckoo," and again being brought back to the footlights, she sang, "If No One Ever Marries Me," in dainty style. Miss Turner, whose voice is a rich contraito, scored equally in such renditions as "The Mother Seal's Lullaby," and for an encore gave the beautiful number "Thoughts Have Wings," the closing passages of which brought out fully the velvet in her tones. Mr. Elsdell is a silver throated tenor, who phrases beautifully and knows all the secrets of tone production. He was also heavily encored, his best work being the selection "If I Were a Bird." Mr. Henry, the baritone, has a noble organ, and his dramatic rendition of the "French Camp Story" brought a strong encore, for which he gave a light ballad that he had to render twice.

The program was ideal in length, and the unconventional manner in which the singers performed their work was refreshing to behold. The audience remained scated after the final number and forced both the quartet and the distinguished composer to come back and bow their acknowledgments. The entire program was of the ideal sort that ought to make music lovers, feel that they owe a personal debt to Mr. Graham, whose hard work made the visit possible.

URGES CHANGES IN LAW.

Statutes on Attachment Need Amending. Says Attorney.

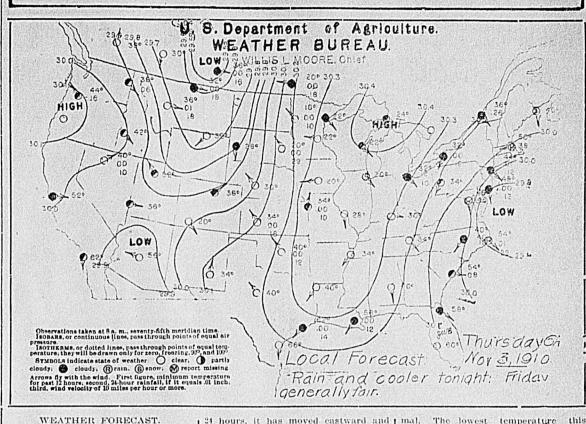

At Wednesday night's meeting of the Retail Merchants association, Atty. Adam Duncan urged several amendments to the state statutes governing attachment processes which at present he considered absurd and inadequate. They need simplifying after the manner of the Idaho statutes which make a bill collectable by attachment after it has become due, and refused on demand. The speaker showed that in most attachment cases coming before Utah courts, the evidence and testimony on which the petition for writ of attachment is based is usually a matter of hearsny, and can ensity be defeated. He advised the association to make the matter of gathering evidence an important one before entering the courts for writs. Adam Duncan urged several amend-

VAUDEVILLIAN HELD UP.

Jack Artois Encounters Couple of Thugs at Stage Door,

Jack Artols, who is playing at the Orpheum, had a brand new experience last evening. Artois is a Frenchman who has played all over the world. He has had all sorts of experience, but he never met the western hold-up until he never met the western hold-up until his present visit to Salt Lake. Just as he approached the stage door about 8:39 o'clock in the evening, a rough looking couple of men drew near him. One of them advanced closely to Artols, who saw that the stranger held one hand in a side pocket with something that might have been a gun, and probably was, pointed in his direction, "Give me 35 cents, quick," came from the rough man in harsh tones. Artois handed over a dollar with celerity and broke for the stage door while the pair of roughs vanished in the darkness.

SOUGHT LEGAL REDRESS.

Mrs. Sola Valleh Wanted Daughter-In-Law Punished.

Mrs. Sola Calish, a member of Salt Lake's Austrian colony, sought the county atorney's office Wednesday for the purpose of getting out a complaint against her daughter-in-law, whom she charges with breaking a marriage bar-gain. About two years ago near Puyal-lup, Wash., Mrs. Calich paid $700 for her daughter-in-law. The girl did not go back on her bargain until they moved to Salt Lake. Then she went back to her parents. Mrs. Calich also charges the girl's parents with induc-ing the girl to desert the husband and she wanted a complaint against them. The county attorney informed the charges with breaking a marriage bar The county attorney informed the irate woman that her redress is in a civil action to recover the money, that neither the girl nor her parents had committed any crime. A contract, signed by all parties concerned, was exhibited to the county atorney. A unique feature of the contract was that if the daughter-in-law lived with her husband for 10 years, the girl's parents were to receive an additional $200. ents were to receive an additional $309
